Richard III Consultation - The Yorkshire Museum

The Yorkshire Museum has been closed since March 2020, but we are excited to reopen in July 2021, when we will be presenting our Richard III exhibition. The Yorkshire Museum will be loaning this famous portrait from the National Portrait Gallery and our curators will be using objects from our collection to show his life in the city and region. With the discovery of his remains in Leicester, it was confirmed that he lived with scoliosis, and we are keen to work with people who have lived experience of disability to ensure that we address this appropriately in the exhibition

We are inviting you to participate in a consultation event on the written interpretation and layout for the exhibit. It will involve a digital introduction to the exhibition by a curator, including objects and potential layout, with a Q&A followed by the sharing of the specific interpretation and access information. The second session is for you to feedback to us on the shared information to influence our interpretation and design

These sessions will be held online using Microsoft Teams on the following dates;

Thursday 13th May at 10am – 30-minute session
Tuesday 18th May at 10am – 45-minute session

You must be able to participate in both sessions to be part of the consultation. Please note that while the session on 13 May will be recorded for those who cannot attend on the day, the session on 18th will only be available as a live event.

As a thank you for the consultation, you will receive a shopping voucher worth £25 which will be posted to you within 4 weeks after the second consultation session.
